

Abstract

The diploma thesis entitled "The Issue of resocialization of persons released from prison" deals with the possibilities of resocialization of persons released from prison. The diploma thesis is focused on how social workers working with prisoners, or ones released from prison, perceive the possibilities of resocialization of these people. The theoretical part deals with criminal law in the Czech Republic, behavioral disorders and their possible resocialization, criminal behavior, penology. It further explains post-penitentiary care, describes what is included in this care and how this tool is used. Last but not least the existing resocialization programs for those ones released from imprisonment are presented in this thesis. The aim of the survey is to answer the research question "How do social workers working with prisoners or persons released from VTOS perceive the possibilities of resocialization of these persons? ".
