

This is the subject of the bachelor-work: "The left-wing extremism in the Czech Republic". Is the danger for society from the left-wing extremism comparison with the right-wing extremism danger? This question is complicated, but there is the answer as a part of it in the work too. The principal aim of this work is the extremism, one of the social pathologic phenomenous. Because it is the subject including a very comprehensive matter, the author's efforts are in the focus to the one only his part, to the left-wing extremism. First of all the definition of extremism and his different parts are presented. Later appear problems of left-wing extremism from the point of view his sociological and juridical aspects in the relation to the singles, movements and organisations, the may be closed in this extreme spectrum. They are named concrete organisations and their contemporary activities operating throughtout the republic territory. The next phenomenon manifesting on this part of extreme spectrum are onlooker violations. Here is an intention to draw attention to the actuall manifestations with an ideological overton, especially on our football stadiums. Not only in the continuity with the anarchist-autonomous movement there are mentioned any of the sub-cultural movements (PUNK, DIY, Free Techno Music ) too.
