

This paper describes implementation of short text message compression algorithm based on PPM. For representation of context model algorithm is used the Optimal Tree Machine data structure built on statistics of training data. Algorithm is optimized for low-level hardware device. This paper summarizes experimental results of this algorithm.