The presented work is about a multiagent system for road traffic control. Every member of traffic is a rational agent able to watch his surroundings and communicate with other agents. The agent is designed as an independent distributable entity. Two different algorithms were suggested in this work for the agents to use when planning routes to the destination. The system is implemented in JAVA language.