

ABSTRACT

This master thesis consists of three parts. The first part presents an overview of the development of minimalism and its importance in literature, more specifically in the Scandinavian area. The second part introduces the prose writer Helle Helle in context of the contemporary Danish literature, and presents her work. The third part of the thesis deals with analysis of the minimalist approach of the author, throughout her novel Ned til hundene.