

Abstract (in English):

The bachelor thesis is focused on the specific aspects of grandparent's foster care. The thesis is divided into theoretical and practical part. In the theoretical part there is a description of foster care in context of substitute family care and social security of foster care. Further is focused only on grandparent foster care, especially on specifics of this type of foster care in comparison with a classic foster care, advantages and disadvantages of this type of care. The practical part, which is realized by a qualitative method, deals with experiences of grandparents, which are compared with experiences of children, now adults, who have undergone foster care of grandparent. I will try to map the specifics of grandparent's foster care.
