

This thesis called “Somatognosia by the chronic back pain patients” summarizes in its theoretical part the information about the concept of one’s own body perception and clears up the terms body image and body schema in various contexts. The experimental part of the thesis includes testing of somatognosia on two sets. This research aims to compare the level and quality of somatognosia by the chronic back pain sufferers and healthy individuals.