The aim of this project is creating an environment which would allow the user to work with chosen matrix algorithms, with the emphasis on understanding their principles. Using a simple programming language, the user will be able to perform computations and display their results. Moreover, the environment is able to show a characterisation, and a description of the course of computation of each algorithm, thus providing information about the means of its operation. The project implements several basic and several advanced algorithms for handling matrices.