My bachelor work deals with the issue of depressive affection and nurses awareness about it. The teoretical part concludes up present theories about this illness.

It also explains its point, cause, symptoms and cure for this affection and an approach of nurses to the patients and their families. Datas from the exploratory study were obtained from a anonymous questionnaire, which I executed and analysed in Microsoft Excel. The questions were focused on the knowledge of the affection, endangering factors which pose a threat to nurses and also on their selfreflection. Acquired datas are represented in graphs and tables. 80 nurses took part in this study. In my work I also conclude improvement suggestions for improving nurses awareness.
