Exam questions

Grade

In your "Discussion", you speak about the possibility of spillover leading to "further supranationalisation and strengthening the EU authority". Could you perhaps talk about why you think this has not happened, moving beyond mere liberal governmentalist arguments and into thinking about the wider context in terms of attitudes towards the EU in member state publics, and, relatedly, to the literature on legitimacy and the democratic deficit.

4,5

Reflect on method - was process-tracing really carried out or could an analytical framework from the or Europeanisation literature been employed instead?

4,5

Why do you believe small member states "punch above their weight"? How do they justify their engagement? Not just in energy policy, but in general in the Euro-area?
