

Abstract

The diploma thesis deals with institute of the unacceptability of cassation complaint as a filtering mechanism used by the Supreme Administrative Court for the selection of cassation complaints. The thesis briefly explains the theoretical base of the institute and its transformation due to the adoption of the amendment to the Code of Administrative Justice in 2021. The text continues with the critical assessment of the effectivity and rationality of the amendment from its theoretical and empirical perspective. The empiric evaluation is based on the author's own statistical research about ruling of cassation complaints. The author completes the thesis with presenting his ideas and suggestions to adjust the institute de lege ferenda.