Attempt: regular

Course of the examination: The student introduced the thesis, which focused on the rise of AI, from the perspective of Rawls and Walzer. The student discussed the social challenges connected to this development - such as epistemic biases, totalitarian tendencies, and lack of moral learning. Based on Walzer, she discussed the lack of common history and further compartmentalization of society. The committee raised the question of the diverse nature of AI technologies, which probably limits the general conclusions of the thesis. The student was well-prepared and was able to address the additional questions with clarity.

Result of defence: excellent (A)
