

ABSTRACT

The bachelor thesis focuses on art that deals with environmental issues and art that draws attention to the current environmental crisis, which is a hot topic today. In the theoretical part, the author will introduce visual artists whose work is related to environmental protection and will describe the directions and techniques that deal with environmental issues. The practical part will focus on her own artistic work in a series of paintings on environmental issues. In the didactic part, the author will discuss the interrelationship between environmental education and art education and then propose a series of art methods to be used in teaching.
