

In my bachelors work Problems of social work in relation to syndrome CAN I investigated some cases of child neglect, mental abuse, physical abuse and sexual abuse. The general term for these types of behavior is syndrome CAN. The goal of my work is to define the problem typically encountered by social workers. Throughout these problems are a lack of information from the profession and public. The lack of state laws which should provide family therapy, dysfunctionality of multidisciplinary cooperation, the lack of social workers and the repeated interviewing of children during a suspected case of CAN. I have divided my work into two parts – the theoretical and the practical. The theoretical part is focused on the status of children in society past and present. I also mentioned the legal parameters encompass the status of children in society. Furthermore it's about the prevention of CAN, its consequences and revealing cases of CAN and the status of social workers in these cases and the problems which they encounter. In practical part I addressed the causes of the case of one girl who was physically punished by her mother. In this case I addressed the problems of social workers when solving the case. Furthermore I put in an evaluation of the results of my survey given to my colleagues. The survey was focused on the functionality and dysfunctionality of multidisciplinary cooperation and related problems.
