

Bachelor's work with topic "Projects which aim to help children from children's homes and prepare them for life" tries to show some projects which are dealing with helping children in children's homes. Evaluates the projects with eyesight of children and educators who took part in them. Shows those project which so far emerge only goldenly and their usefulness in current system of Constitutional Education. Theoretic part covers system of Constitutional Education in Czech Republic and names types of this education. Views reasons which lead to constitutional education and also describes Children's home in Smolin. Last but not least, names hazards and drawbacks of children's homes as well. Practical part is oriented to show results of survey which was made among children from Children's home in Smolin. With help of half-structured interview this survey uncovers opinions of children and educators about pros and cons of helping projects. Children delivered their own opinion to each of three chosen projects. They expressed their enthusiasm and also disappointment over the projects. As well as educators who took part of observers in those projects. Conclusion showed that these projects have an important place in Children's home in Smolin. Children's home is taking them into account as big helper in area of preparation of children for their following part of life which will be going on behind gates of children's home.