

Summary

This paper compares two passages – Jer 31:31-34 and Eze 36:23-28 – which are very close to each other. Both are prophetic speeches to the house of Israel and their key themes are covenant and renewal of heart. First, the biblical term be heart is analysed, then the exegesis of both passages is proceeded with the use of common dictionaries (TDOT, HALOT) and commentaries (AB, Jerome's Biblical Commentary, WBC). Then a comparison of the passages is made, considering also comparison of the whole books. Finally the paper confronts its outcome with the document of PBC: The Jewish People and their Sacred Scriptures in the Christian Bible, which treats this subject shortly.
