

This diploma thesis deals with the position of women in the church and their ministration. In several chapters the change of roles over time of women in the church has been described, from the Old Testament time until today. It includes the most frequently used arguments in favour or against subordination of women in the church and also deals with basic differences in the spirituality of women and men.