

This thesis deals with the aesthetic elements of South Indian classical dance bharatanatyam and its main task is to give readers an insight into the fundamental issues of this topic. It consists of a historical outline which tries to grasp the overall development of this dance with the necessary supplement of the basic dance technique and outline of a dance performance. The second part focuses on the individual aesthetic features with special emphasis on their function which often doesn't have only a single meaning.