

In my work I have tried to solve one question: What kind of conception of action is offered to us by Hannah Arendt in her well known work The Human Condition? At first I have tried to find way how to read the text, therefore I made an analysis of what condition, vita activa and other essential concepts mean. The care of my work consist in uncovering the picture of action how is showed and hidden in chapter dedicated to it. I try to uncover the meaning of action adding concept by concept to it and relating to each other. After all I take a brief look at other essay where Arendt copes with action and compare her new solutions with ones found in The Human Condition.
