

The author deals with two groups of patients diagnosed with colorectal cancer and compared patients with this diagnosis are treated and monitored a second group in which this newly diagnosed disease.