

The topic of my bachelor work is aimed to social work with asylum seekers, refugees in the Great Britain, Armenia and the Czech Republic. In this paper I would like to shortly describe history, legislative framework and also work or duties of people working with asylum seekers, refugees or any kind of newcomers inside countries I have mentioned above. Another goal of the paper work describes situation of newcomers in these states. The choice of compared countries was based on dissimilar experiences with newcomers linked also with different economic situation in each particular state. Sources of information come as from practical experiences (practical training placement, voluntary work etc.) as from literature and Internet. In each country I try pick up main or specific problem, advantages and disadvantages of the system. At the end of the work I show some possibility of the future in social work with newcomers.
