

Abstract

This bachelor thesis focuses on activities of Sudetendeutsche landsmannschaft and its influence on czech-german relationships in 1990-2015. Sudetendeutsche landsmannschaft is organization, which covers and defends the interests of German citizens, who were displaced or fled from czech territory because of world war II. Thesis summarizes most important events, which had an impact on international relationships of Czech republic and Germany. In the first part there are definitions of Sudetenland and Sudeten German, which are the main keys to this thesis. Then I will describe the founding of organisation which represents Sudeten German, structure of this organization and program 20 points. In next chapter I analyze events during years 1990-2015, which begin of the fall of the communism in Czechoslovakia in 1989. Important event for czech-german relationships was completion of Czech-german declaration in 1997. Next chapters are for example about entry of Czech republic to European Union, ratification of the Treaty of Lisbon and presidential election in 2013. Great success was speech of prime minister Petr Nečas in Bavarian parliament in 2013, because in next years was changed code of rules of Sudetendeutsche landsmannschaft. The final part is about my hypothesis and about summary knowledge
