

This work deals with the problem of life and rights of unborn children and it is observed from different points of view. The key question is in which moment the life as such begins and should be protected. Attention is paid to the status of human embryo, different views on interruption, problem of assisted reproduction and research on embryonic stem cells. The work is enriched by opinions of Czech well-known experts on the topic discussed.