

Bachelor thesis deals with the support of the family and the collaboration of social workers from the Department of Social and Legal Protection of Children of the Municipal Authority in Náchod with the workers of nongovernmental organization Salinger. The first part is aimed to explain the basic concepts concerning the issue of support of the family (family, family at risk, the attitude of the state towards families, child at risk, social and legal protection of children, legislation relating to the protection of children's rights, the authority of social and legal protection of children, support of families, multidisciplinary team, presentation of Salinger, a nonprofit organization providing services dealing with family in Hradec Kralove region). Another aim is to describe the functions of these two legally distinct institutions and outline what are the appropriate conditions for their cooperation. The second part is mainly composed of observed data analysis and interpretation of interviews with social workers of Salinger and workers of the Department of Social and Legal Protection of Children of the Municipal Authority in Náchod. The qualitative research is aimed to find out how the mutual cooperation between the two organizations works, how workers assess this cooperation and what according to them, good cooperation involves.