

Abstract:

This bachelor thesis is focused on employment opportunities of information professionals in the labour market in conjunction with current educational possibilities in the Czech Republic. The thesis provides a detailed overview of competencies related to information profession within six information areas. Furthermore, it also monitors local and international trends in this field. The second part aims to evaluate usefulness and practicality of selected professional courses currently offered within the Information studies and librarianship at the Faculty of Arts at the Charles University in relation with the needs of graduates in the corporate sector.