

Anotace v angličtině

- 1) To create brief characteristics of particular functions of the Greek imperfect based on papers from reputable scientific handbooks of the greek grammar: Rijksbaron, Smyth, Schwyzer – Debrunner, Kühner – Gerth, Duhoux, Humbert.
- 2) To look up the secondary literature relevant for the topic in bibliographic handbooks and databases L'année philologique, GoogleScholar, Gnomon, Buijs etc.
- 3) The thesis won't follow the usual distinction between imperfect: imperfectivity and aorist: perfectivity. Contrariwise, the student's task will be to find cases which don't correspond with the standard distinction and to comment, classify and find an explanation for these non-standard occurrences. The material will be excerpted from adequately extensive passage from a narrative work of the student's own choice.
